GAINES STREET FEST

BANDS * SPONSORS * MAP

Forged in the frustration and drama of road construction, this Festival first came together when it seemed like no one cared about Gaines Street except the people who cared most. A few years later, the trees are growing and the asphalt's smooth. People who once partied all nights at the Cow Haus now take their kids to Gaines Street Pies for a slice. Local music keeps the bars thumping. And once a year, we throw ourselves a party. The biggest damn party in town.

More than 100 performers haul their guitars and synthesizers and projectors and laptops down to Gaines to spend one day showing off. Bands play for the crowds that love them most. Fans spend all day gorging on that sweet, sweet music. You run into everyone you know and everyone you'd like to know. Your high school math teacher's on the Outside Stage playing mandolin, your neighbor's shopping for New Wave 7"s at Retrofit, your boss buys you a beer at St. Mike's.

So many people pitch in to make this happen. The businesses run sales, the bars and restaurants let us invade and put bands in weird corners, the performers do their magic, and everyone promotes the hell out of it. Pabst Brewing knows how much of their beer runs through Gaines, and they always send along cool gear. People kick in money to cover costs, and everybody comes out to make it a great time.

But without one woman, Gaines Street Fest would have stayed the kind of idea you talk about when you're drinking but never actually make happen. Taylor Biro works more than full time, raises her awesome son, and still herds cats and organize the Festival. It's awe-inspiring to watch her keep the plates spinning. So if you see a woman out there today, covered in tattoos and looking sort of dazed and cautiously happy that it's coming together so well, buy her a beer. Then buy one for yourself. You've both earned it.

- Hank Saints

A FEW WORDS FROM TAYLOR

Wow! I can't believe it's the 3rd Gaines Street Fest. It seems like only yesterday Hank and I were sitting at St. Mike's trying to figure out how to even pull something like this off. But with lots of support from the shops on Gaines Street our dream became a reality. As you all know, the purpose for the first Fest was to show the community that Gaines was still a rad place to hang out and shop despite the construction and road closures. Now, with the new College Town popping up, we have a new reason to celebrate! Let's welcome our new neighbors to the area and show them how it's done on Gaines Street.

Biggest thank you to Hank! He has been there since day one, working his tail off to organize this Fest! Without him and his dedication I would have been lost! Thank you to Dan Cavanaugh; he knows Gaines Street better than most and has showed incredible loyalty to the folks in the area. Thank you to Jake Bopp for helping organize the sound and outside stage. Thank you to Jenn Carreras for organizing the volunteers and keeping them in line. Thank you to all the shops on Gaines Street for being so supportive. Thank you to the sound guys for making sure we are on point! Thank you to the sponsors for believing in the Fest and wanting to be a part of it! Thank you to Gaines Street Pies and Jeremy for going above and beyond in sponsorship! Thank you to all the bands and volunteers for donating your time and talent. This event couldn't happen without you all. There are so many people that have helped with this event either this year or in the past and I just want you to know that is appreciate you guys so much and I look forward to working with you all next year…and the year after…and the year after that…
